A very highly respected Blaimore old-timer, passed away in Edmonton on Saturday last in the person of Oscar Capron.

For a great number of years, Mr. Capron and his family resided in West Blaimore. Of late years he occupied a position as watchman with the West Canadian Collieries.

Several months ago, failing health forced him to relinquish his work. About ten days ago, he left to visit a son in the Peace River country, and was taken seriously ill there. He was rushed to Edmonton, where the end came.

The remains were brought to Blaimore, and interment takes place tomorrow afternoon, the remains to be laid to rest in the Protestant cemetery.

AN EASTERN IMPRESSION OF THE WEST

A. Hector Cutten, of Lower Truro, N.S., recently returned to his home from a trip through Western Canada, in which he travelled some 10,000 miles. Foremost among his impressions were these:

Asked about the Alberta Government, he said he had listened to the debates in Edmonton several days. He was there when Hon. Farrow during his address drank 13 glasses of water, which recalled to his mind what Howe said to Tupper once: "It was the first time he ever saw a windmill run by water."

Asked what he had learned about Aberhart's policy, he replied that he had learned his prayer, and here it is: "Our Father who are in Edmonton, Aberhart be thy name. Thy will be done in Canada as it is in Alberta. Give us this day our dividend, and forgive us our impatience, as we forgive those that elected you. Lead us not into the hands of the Big Shots, for thine is the kingdom, the Power and the Glory until the next election comes around. Amen."—Truro News.

Holding that he had been responsible for the Regina riot of a year ago, J. S. Woodworth, C.C.F. leader, demanded the dismissal of Sir James MacBrien as commissioner of the Mounted Police.

To Assist Unemployed

National Council Of Women Urges That More Attention Be Given To Question

Maximum working hours in industry and commerce should be so distributed as to allow at least one and a half days weekly rest, and that these intervals should be continuous wherever possible—the so-called English weekend—the National Council of Women urged.

The 43rd annual convention also felt that in view of the widespread unemployment among "intellectual workers," national health and unemployment insurance schemes should be widened in their scope.

The two points were contained in a resolution advocated by the international council of women, passed by the convention at Halifax.

Increasing difficulty was experienced by women over the age of 30 years, in retaining or obtaining employment, another point of the same resolution said. It urged the establishment of loan funds and training schemes to enable such women to qualify themselves for entry into new occupations.

Immediate measures for the aid of the unemployed youth, just out of high school, and the older unemployed women were advocated by the convener of the standing committee on trades and professions. In her report, Miss Eva T. McKivior, of Winnipeg, suggested courses in which would be taught the rudiments of ethnology, history of civilization, hygiene, personal and social duties, and national and international civics, so helpful in that direction.

As convener of the committee on natural resources and industry, Mrs. George Bell, of Regina, reported a moderate but steady improvement in Canadian industry.

She drew her conclusion from the reports presented her by councils in 19 cities and towns from Halifax to Vancouver.

Pioneer Bird Bander Active

Jack Miner Bands Over Twelve Hundred Canada Geese This Spring

It is a well-known fact that Jack Miner is a pioneer in tagging birds on this continent. He tagged his first duck in August, 1909, at Kingsville, Ontario. That duck was reported killed in January, 1910, in South Carolina.

He had to invent nets and contrivances to catch the various species he has tagged. That, in itself, was a task that demanded no little ingenuity and entailed no small expense.

To date he has tagged over fifteen thousand Canada geese. This past spring he made seven or eight catches, which totalled over twelve hundred in number.

These tags furnish invaluable information to the scientists, naturalists and game protective departments concerned in the study of the life, habits and migration routes of our birds. The authentic data so secured is used not only in the universities of the continent, but also by federal, state and provincial governments in both Canada and the United States. Such records demonstrate clearly where the largest percentages of migratory wildfowl are killed.

Each tag put on bears Jack Miner's name, post office address and the date, while in one corner is also stamped a selected verse of Scripture, this being Jack Miner's unique way of passing along God's word to the people who shoot this coveted game bird.

Each of the twelve hundred tags put on this spring carried such a Scripture message, so that Jack Miner calls them his "winged missionaries."

Wheat Control Abandoned

Spain Is First To Part With Europe's Policy On Protecting Wheat Growers

The first important breach in Europe's policy of protecting domestic wheat producers by elaborate governmental methods can be attributed to Spain. The government of that country has given up policies providing for fixed prices, controlled sales and segregation of surplus stocks.

For twenty years the Spanish government has exercised control over the wheat industry in Spain and of late years these measures have had infinite variety. The objective has been to increase returns to producers while maintaining low prices of bread. The only regulation now in force compels mills to keep on hand one month's supply of flour. The government now has on hand about 14,000,000 bushels out of a surplus of about 22,000,000 bushels which was purchased to prevent disruption of the market last year. The government claims that the farmers have extended wheat seeding to unsuitable land, thus bringing about the possibility of a continuous surplus. What is a basic factor in the wealth of Spain, representing about 25 per cent. of the total value of all agricultural production.—The Budget.

Fewer Failures In Canada

Figures Showed Improvement Over Corresponding Period Last Year

A considerable improvement was shown in the number of commercial failures in the three months ended March 31, compared with the corresponding period of 1935, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Assignments in the three months totalled 338, with liabilities of $4,483,436, and assets of $3,979,735, compared with 361 assignments, with liabilities of $3,658,986 and assets at $2,594,362 in the corresponding period of last year.

Sailing To Southern Seas

Romantic Story Behind Proposed Trip Of Young Adventurers

"Voyage to South Seas" is said. Schooner leaving August for about a year. Six young men wanted to crew; each contribute $500 toward expenses.

Behind this advertisement in a London newspaper is a story that would have inspired the romantic imagination of Joseph Conrad.

It began 15 years ago when two children met at school. The other day they were married. Now they plan to sail away with six other adventurers and two friends for 30,000 miles. Like all true adventures they are going into the unknown, but with the knowledge that they cannot go so far without finding more interesting life than by staying in one town.

The bridegroom when interviewed, said: "I am negotiating for the purchase of a 150-ton schooner. This will be paid for out of my own pocket. I shall be master, Lars Paersch, a Finn, with whom I have served in sail, will come as first mate.

"My wife's brother, George, will be a member of the crew. My wife will supervise the cooking and stores and generally do the purchaser's work, as well as taking a turn at the wheel and other ship's duties. She is filled with quiet enthusiasm. She has complete faith in the future.

"We now require six young men between the ages of 18 and 30," the bridegroom added. "They must be good mixers and prepared to pay $500 each towards the cost in return for food, accommodation and the experience."

Old Roman Coins Found

Workmen In Dorchester, England, Come Across Twenty Thousand

Special police watch was placed on the Dorset Museum, where 20,000 Roman coins discovered by excavating workmen in Dorchester, England, were taken.

Dug out by men working on the foundations of a chain store, the hoard is now found to have been one of the biggest ever discovered in Great Britain.

Police took the coins from the spot where they were found, and some have been sent to the British Museum for experts to decide if they are treasure trove. If they are, the customary inquest will have to be held on them.

So great was the crowd round the scene of the discovery that extra hoardings were erected.

Behind these the workmen were excavating carefully, and bit by bit the plan of a villa once inhabited by a wealthy resident of Roman Dorchester was unfolded.

The coins were found in a beautiful bronze ewer nearly 18 in. high, and a bowl more than a foot across. Part of a wooden box contained further stores of wealth.

New Method Discovered

Muscles When Tensed Are Rested Quickly For Short Spurts

Discovery of a method to "pump up" tired muscles, which for short spurts rests them more quickly than complete relaxation, has been announced in Rochester, N.Y.

When tired muscles are deliberately tensed the action appears to inject or squeeze into them a revitalizing chemical naturally produced in the body. There are three of these chemicals. The one believed responsible is adrenalin, the adrenal gland product which man manufactures liberally when he fights.

The time for spread of the energizing chemical is cut to split seconds by the "pumping up" method. The discovery reveals a hitherto scientifically unrecognized quick energy reservoir.

The exhibit shows frog muscles "loaded," that is under alternate pull and release, which fatigues them. Complete relaxation overcomes the fatigue in about ten seconds. But tensing a muscle rapidly restores its energy in about half a second.

A Cornell gymnast reported similar results in bar climbing work. After 20 successive chin-ups a short relaxation with arms outstretched left him with scarcely strength to resume chinning. But tensing for an equal period restored his muscles so that he went on easily and repeated the chinings more than 20 times.

The chestnut blight is the most virulent and destructive disease of forest trees ever recorded.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The new should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just drops in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Bile flows up into the body and you feel sick, drowsy and the world looks pink.

A new movement called "always get up" is the answer. You need something that works on the bowels. It is called "LIVER PILLS." Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Bile flows and you feel the bile flow freely. They do the work of nature but have no alcohol or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! It stubbornly refuses anything else. 25c.

Plans New Super-Liner

Naval Officer Believes Ship Would Accommodate 10,000 Passengers

Vladimir Yourkevitch, erstwhile Czarist naval officer and designer of the hull of the Normandie, arrived at New York by the French liner Paris. Mr. Yourkevitch carried plans for a possible new trans-Atlantic liner of 100,000 tons of gross, 25 per cent. greater than the Queen Mary.

Looking across to the adjoining pier, where the Queen Mary lay, Mr. Yourkevitch pictured his new liner as capable of developing 260,000 horsepower, racing 36 knots, and accommodating 10,000 passengers.

LOUIS MEYER MAKES NEW RECORD

Well known to thousands of Western Canadians, Louis Meyer again won the gruelling 500-mile annual race at the Indianapolis Speedway and established a new record of 109.06 miles per hour. Meyer is the only man to have won the race three times. Many readers will remember his having raced in a rubber-tired tractor at the Fall Fairs throughout Western Canada several years ago. In his opinion the new speed records and absence of fatalities in the daring race are largely due to high speed tire developments. With the question of tire safety no longer a factor, Meyer says drivers' confidence and freedom from worry have greatly improved their driving ability and opportunities. Firestone Tires were used.

Rescued By Chamberlain

Chancellor Of Exchequer Waded Into Lake After Small Boy

Forgetting his grey top hat and morning coat, Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, waded knee-deep into St. James Park lake to rescue a four-year-old London boy. Chamberlain was walking in the park, within sight of both Buckingham and St. James' palaces when he heard a woman's screams. He hurried a railing, strode through the water, grasped the lad and handed him over to his mother. Then, his striped trousers dripping water, he hurried away to nearly 11 Downing street.

JESUS MEETING THE WORLD'S NEEDS

Golden text: Jesus of Nazareth...

Devotional reading: Acts 1:11.

Jesus Gave a Worthy Ideal. Jesus Meeting the World's Needs is our special review topic. What are the world's needs? Of course the answer is that the world's needs are many, so many that no one can possibly give them all. But they can be classified in such a way as to make our question not an altogether impossible one to answer.

Jesus gave a worthy ideal. This, certainly, is one of the world's greatest needs which Jesus meets, an ideal of life and conduct and spirit through which we should be and do. The sermon on the Mount convicts us and shows us the kind of lives we should try to live.

He Realized His Ideal. He not only painted a picture of what we should be and do, but he lived it and thought, but he incarnated that picture in his own life. It is the story of what Jesus did, even more than his picture of what we should be, that wins us. And it is the fact that he lived the embodiment of what he taught that fills us with hope; the fact that he, in his human experience, realized the perfect will of God tells us that we can approach unto his perfect life and service. It is a most inspiring fact that Jesus lived the kind of life he did, triumphing in temptation and mastering the hard and trying and tragic tasks given him.

He Meets the Need of a Saviour. Whatever may be our theory of the meaning and purpose of the life and death of Jesus, we all unite in one thought that he is the Saviour of the world.

"I know a soul that is steeped in...

That no man's art can cure; But I know a Name, a precious Name.

That can make that soul all pure."

FLEMING'S FOLLY

—BY—
LAWRENCE A. SEATING

CHAPTER XVIII.

Her face became white and Helen uttered a gasp of dismay. She took a step back as if dumbfounded while Link, feeling his discomfort heighten, avoided her accusing eyes. He scarcely noticed Matt Benson, the renter of a small parcel of ranch land from Kilgo, mutter an exclamation behind him. Benson stared an instant, then turned and hurried off to reveal the precious morsel of news he had just chanced to overhear.

At that moment Ed Port, Fleming's rider, approached from behind and touched his boss's arm. He turned slowly to find the man tense with suppressed excitement.

"Link," he exclaimed, "I saw that hombre in the checked shirt. He just went through the back door of the bank!"

"The bank?" A frown slowly rippled his forehead. He saw Port nod. Waco and the other stopped at that moment, and were quickly apprised of this discovery.

"What yuh goin' to do?" Byrne's uneasy eyes noted Roper at the lead of loungers and cardplayers emerging from the Half Moon.

"We're going in the bank, of course! Funny it didn't occur to me to look there. Helen, did you hear that? You'd better move over near the hotel," he went on in a low tone. "There's no telling what might happen now."

He turned back to the men. "How long ago, Ed?"

"Just a couple of minutes. That back door ain't usually open, is it?"

"No. You skip back and watch; he might come out and lose himself again. Waco, yuh'd better go with Drew can go front with me, and Halby, you stay out with just in case. If you see the others, call 'em over. But keep this as quiet as you can; there's no need to upset the whole town."

"We're too late to keep it quiet," was the growl from Byrne. Following his eyes, Fleming saw Kilgo and Buzz coming slowly toward them, although still a hundred yards away. There was a grim look on the Box owner's reddish countenance, but though his gaze encountered Link's, he made no effort to call to him.

"Scatter!" At once the men turned and hurried along the side of the Stockmen's Bank to guard its rear. Link and Mike Drew waited another moment, then walked slowly inside the institution.

It was gloomy as ever, with the melancholy quiet of a deserted hall. But when their eyes became accustomed to the dusty shafts of light from the side windows Fleming and his aide made out Jimmy Farlane, the clerk, and Otto Pieper himself, seated at his accustomed desk immersed in work.

"Stand over by Farlane and keep your eye on him," Mike nodded and changed his shoes. Fleming walked up to the rail separating the public from Pieper and waited for the man to look up. Otto noticed him and frowned inquiringly.

"Listen, Otto: I was held up out near Holmes Junction, and robbed of nearly eight thousand dollars' steer money. The man who did the job—one of 'em—wore a checked shirt. He was heavy-set, wore corduroys. Just a couple of minutes ago he was seen comin' in here. Where is he?"

"The answer was a blank, incredulous look. While he made clucking noises with his mouth the Rawhide banker rose and came quickly to Link. "Robbed?" he echoed. "My, my, that's too bad. Why, it's a shame—a crime against society! Where's Sheriff Stephen? Does he mean to permit such high-handed—" Where is he, Otto?"

"The other's weakened face assumed a perplexed look and he shrugged. But something in his attitude, some slight suspicious note in his look, roused the hunch in Fleming that Pieper knew more than he was admitting.

"Fahaw, how cou'd that be? Otto said he was out of the bank in this town who could be trusted. Link looked at him again. "This hombre was seen comin' in your back door. You claim you haven't seen him?"

"Did the man's face pale somewhat? "No, of course not!" He glanced about as if seeking the hold-up, fearful lest he might be in the bank unknown to himself and Jimmy Farlane.

Link hesitated. This was a risky business, and he was by no means positive there had not been some mistake. "Drew," he called over his shoulders, "do you think Port might be wrong?"

"No, sir, he shore saw the guy, Link!"

"But for heaven's sake, gentlemen, we don't entertain holdups in this institution! Why, do you mean—"

Pieper left off, swallowing hard. His eyes fixed on the sixgun Fleming drew slowly and held in his hand. His ominous muzzle was pointed at Otto's heart. "Reckon you better turn him over," he stated in flat, determined tone. "That gent is in your bank and we want him!"

Silence. Pieper, his mouth wide open, raised trembling hands to ear height. A rasp of boot heels made both Star Loop men turn to glance at the front door. Link's eyes clashed with those of Roper Kilgo, pausing on the threshold. Two curious faces peered over his shoulder, Benson and Buzz.

"Bank robbery!" Kilgo yelled, pulling back. "Fleming's holdin' up the bank!"

The full significance of this alarm required brief time to reach Link's brain, so utterly ridiculous was the assertion, of course. Growls sprang from other men behind Kilgo. Then, with cries of "Let's get 'em!" and "Bank robbery—help, help!" they surged forward.

Pieper stood as if transfixed. Link for the moment was indecisive—and that hesitation made any bold movement too late. For with Roper, Benson, and Howland in the lead, and an increasing crowd of townsfolk summoned by the endless chain of startled cries up and down Main Street, the men swarmed about him with guns bristling, faces charged with the threat to kill.

He had no cause to shoot, so merely stooping, "Grab him!" Link jerked away angrily as someone clutched his arm. "I'm here after the guy that held me up and stole my steer money; he was seen comin' in this bank!"

"It's a lie! Boys, look out for this man—he's got a gun with him. Grab Drew!" Kilgo yelled. And before Mike could move he was seized.

Roper grunted. "Some more of yuh! go outside, Get, Halby and Byrne and Laverty. What does a man bring a lot of gun-throver to town for an' surround the bank?" he tell yuh, boys," he yelled as the interior of the institution became packed with breathless, excited humanity. "Link ran out o' money. He knows that crazy scheme o' his—Fleming's Folly—is goin' busted."

"What does he want to pull this job for?" he cried again. "It betcha he was going to leave town. Shore. Ain't Jackpot Mell lookin' for him?"

Just then the tall, angular figure of the gambler made his way to the fore. "Yuh bet Yuh ain't seen him?" Mell growled nastily, his cold glare fixed on the travelling up and down Fleming's frame. "And right now I've got him, too!"

"Hold on, Jackpot—yuh can't pull a shootin' here!"

"Anyhow, we don't want him shot," he yelled someone down the milling throng. "Let'synch the damned bank robber. Done all he could to bust this country an' victimize us ranchers, ain't he?"

Link strove to get free. But his gun was gone, and ready hands gripped his arms, ready hands behind him. Struggle as he might he was a prisoner, white-faced and tense, facing the crowd of hostile townsfolk and ranchers whose vengeance was swiftly being aroused by the custody of Kilgo and Mell.

"Wait!" he yelled. "I tell you I was held up. Ed Port saw the guy come in here—"

"Outside!" cried someone. "Let's have a necktie party!"

The proposal struck a responsive chord. "That's it—let's hang him!"

"He can't rob our bank an' get away with it!"

"That holdup's all talk. It's a lie. Link meant to stick up Otto and then make a getaway."

"Yeah—leave the girl flat. Why, the Hamilton spread is practically busted right now!"

Amazement flooded over the Star Loop owner's face—sheer disbelief that such viciousness could be touched to life in the hearts and brains of these folk. Always friendly to him, they had suddenly sparked to hate—and why? How was it possible?

He knew, of course: it was plain. The unceasing, crafty work of months by Roper and Mell. The hitherto undisputed leadership of Kilgo was now reaping its harvest. To have followed irritation when he did not believe in it was a serious enough crime; but actually to have won Roper's intended bride away from him—that was forever unforgivable.

Jostling, hawling, milling, trying out epithets and insults, the throng crashed and elbowed its way out of the bank. Otto Pieper stood watch as a man struck dumb. Then he followed, automatically, blinking, clearing his throat, tugging helplessly at his watch chain as he saw the protesting mob burst through his front door and into the street. Otto could not absorb all this. He was dumbfounded.

"Where'll we hang him, boys?" "How about Iron Spring?"

"That's a damned red-headed ruffian," that's too far. Why not use that pole in front of the jail?"

This seized the fancy of the mob. Cries of approval greeted the suggestion, and everyone moved down the street. In the crush of sweaty, profane and vulgar humanity Fleming was mauled and shoved, cursed and kicked along with the irrepressible tide. His protests were futile and unheard for the threats of rage on all sides. There was no reason here, but only blind frenzy—the desire of the locale to protect themselves against something they did not understand but had been educated to fear.

That something was progress. The progress of irrigation. By his stealthy work, his astuteness and cleverness dating from the day before the ranchers' meeting last Fall, Roper Kilgo had laid this ground-work. Now he was to reap his harvest, using Rawhide citizens to wreak vengeance.

The czar of Boone County was to have his unquestioned authority like, because the brain cells still were under the effect of the anaesthetic during the seven minutes of lifelessness."

Dr. Masser reported the 20-year-old girl's heart stopped beating shortly after chloroform had been administered preliminary to having her teeth extracted by a dentist.

"The patient went suddenly white, breathing stopped and the pupils dilated widely. The pulse and heart sounds could not be detected."

"The head was immediately lowered, artificial respiration started, and strychnine was given hypodermically."

"While this was being carried on, I massaged her through the diaphragm from beneath the costal margin. No response of any sort occurred, so I decided to try an intra-cardiac injection of 'coral' plunging a long needle into the left ventricle about the level of the fourth space, and slowly injected the 'coral'."

"Immediately after this, the massage through the diaphragm was continued, and in about one minute I could see a faint flicker of pulsation in the external jugular vein of the neck."

"After another 10 minutes of artificial respiration the breathing recommenced and the pulse at the wrist gradually returned."

"Her condition gradually improved so much that I decided to continue the anaesthetic with open ether, and the dentist proceeded to remove about 24 teeth."

The report added the girl made an uneventful recovery. She went back to work two days later.

Suits For Well-Dressed Men Will Be Poured Over 'em

The era of well-dressed men—with suits poured to order—was proclaimed at the 29th annual convention of the International Association of Garment Manufacturers at Chicago.

Harry Simons, New York fashion expert, announced the imminence of the tailored millennium. "A cellulose substance is being perfected which will enable men's suits to be tailored merely by pouring the substance over a form on the body," he said.

"There will be no need for further trial fittings and alterations. After the substance is poured, it will be patterned to suit the man's body."

With the "poured suit" period, Mr. Simons predicted the return of the nineteenth-century "dandy," with clothes of lemon yellow, light red, blue and rose mixtures.

Caller: "Is Mrs. Paterson-Pritchard at home?"

Maid: "She's at home all right, but she ain't in a fit state to see anybody. Me an' 'er 'as just bin 'aving words."

Women are the most successful peddlers. Men won't buy from another man just to get rid of him.

If some men were to lose their self-conceit there wouldn't be much left.

Interlude With Death

British Medical Men Are Interested In Strange Case

British medical circles recently heard the astounding story of Mary Devonport's seven-minute interlude of "death" in a dental chair, how she lost 24 teeth and how she went back to work in a steel factory.

"The case poses a question for those who believe the soul leaves the body on the instant of death," remarked Dr. Alfred A. Masser of Sheffield. He described the case for the British Medical Journal.

"She remembers nothing about her strange experience," the doctor asserted. "There were no dreams under the chloroform. Her brain registered no reaction to what death is like, because the brain cells still were under the effect of the anaesthetic during the seven minutes of lifelessness."

Dr. Masser reported the 20-year-old girl's heart stopped beating shortly after chloroform had been administered preliminary to having her teeth extracted by a dentist.

Preferred The Sermons

Ragman Did Well With Those He Received In Trade

The wife of a minister traded a box of his old sermons for a new bread pan. The next spring the ragman came around again, and asked if she had any more sermons to sell.

"Why do you want sermons?" "Because I did so well with those I got here a year ago. I was unable to work in the summer, and a preacher in the country boarded me and my horse three months for that barrel of sermons, and he has since got a great reputation as a preacher up there. I'll give you 5 cents a pound for all you have."

Carried Jewish Synagogue

A Jewish synagogue was carried across the ocean on a British ship for the first time in history on the maiden voyage of the new sea queen, the Queen Mary, according to Jewish passengers aboard the Cunard-White Star liner. Religious services were held throughout the initial voyage, with most of the estimated 500 Jews aboard in attendance.

"Yes—so he was telling me all this morning."

Beech, birch, maple, sap, and regum are reported as being used in largest quantities for handles of tea kettles and coffee pots.

Little Helps For This Week

Driven by a shortage of food to give up the freedom they have guarded jealously since the white man first invaded their hunting grounds, non-treaty Chippewa Indians of the Rocky Mountain House, Alta., district have at last surrendered, it was learned.

They asked the Dominion government to form a reserve and make them treaty Indians and wards of the king. The department of Indian Affairs has started formation of a new reserve, consisting of two townships of land 32 miles northwest of Rocky Mountain House.

Creer from the Cypress Hills reserve, south of Maple Creek, Sask., will join the Chippewas on the new reserve, expected to be opened before winter.

Russia is preparing to construct a ship which will make a voyage like that undertaken by Nansen in the Fram more than 40 years ago. It is for studying Arctic conditions. The Fram was 400 tons. The new vessel will be 1,000 tons and will carry an airplane.

WASTEBASKETS NEEDED

Every newspaper office today needs new equipment in the way of wastebaskets. The increasing demand made for free publicity has grown to such an extent, the baskets are filled to overflowing. These agencies and firms seem to forget that it takes money to operate a newspaper. Much of this matter may be good, but we must consider our readers and give them the news of the district and any information we believe of value to them. All other articles are consigned to the wastebaskets.

THE WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

(Huntsville, Ont., Forester)

The president of a great metropolitan French daily paper told a group of weekly newspaper publishers recently in Montreal that the "country weekly" was a powerful medium in community building, and a strong influence in local, provincial and national affairs, even to a greater extent, he thought, than the large city dailies. The mayor of Canada's greatest city—Montreal—who had given up important engagements to attend a luncheon with the "country" editors, made this observation: "You editors control a powerful weapon. Your local newspapers give you a most potential source of strength and leadership in public affairs. No other instrument—not even the metropolitan daily—has the same power in shaping the destinies of Canada, as has the thoroughly read weekly newspaper." The president of one of Canada's greatest insurance organizations welcomed the weekly editors as the "moulders of public policies." These tributes are recorded here, not in a spirit of boastful pride in their high origin, but because they indicate a growing recognition of the important functions of the local newspaper. These are the opinions of men who, but a few years ago, would have hesitated to acknowledge the local paper's sphere of influence as extending beyond the strictest limitations of its local environs. Local newspapers, taken as a whole, have, in late years, reached a standard far in advance of the day when they were regarded as merely the purveyors of local gossip, and the legitimate target for local ridicule. Today they are giving their communities not only a news service of great interest and value, but they are giving editorial expression on thoughtfully considered public questions, which, taken collectively, is reflecting the drift of public opinion throughout the country, and is influencing legislative bodies more, perhaps, than any other medium. "Give me the chance to know what the country editors are saying, and I'll venture to tell you what is in the minds of the masses of the people," recently remarked a well-known public man. The growing admiration for the local newspaper by shrewd far-seeing men, within our cities, who are close to the pulse of national problems, is too often wanting among local citizens, whose intimacy of contact with their local newspaper, is not to blind their eyes to its real place of value in their community. Appreciation of its contribution to community welfare would be expressed more readily if its functions were to cease.

At Sackville, New Brunswick, Rev. H. G. Wright, of Inverness, N.S., was elected president of the Maritime Conference of the United Church. Rev. F. E. Boothroyd, formerly of Irma and Taber in Alberta, now of Hunter River, P.E.I., was appointed member of a business committee.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

"Off-Guard" Photography

Patience and strategic stalking of the subjects until they were "off guard" netted these interesting snapshots.

TAKING snapshots of people when they are not aware that they are about to be "shot," thereby catching them with natural expressions and in unposed positions, is often called "candid" photography, but we of The Snapshot Guild like the words "off-guard" photography as more truly descriptive.

"Candid" implies there is that kind of expression on the face of the subject and it may not always be there, but there is no doubt that for a natural expression he must be "off guard" at the moment the picture is made, which is also just what the professional photographer waits to capture in making a studio portrait. "Off-guard" photography is lots of fun, but there are important points about it that need to be observed to get satisfying results. You can't "shoot" thoughtlessly without regard to the direction and strength of the light, nor can you forget that exposure and focus are just as important as for a premeditated pose. Nor should you overlook background. This means that if you are going to catch your subject unawares, you may have to do some strategic stalking for the right position.

Supposing, for example, you want a picture of Grandpa outdoors amusing one of the children. First, observe the intensity of the light and where it will come from when you take the picture. Then, set your lens aperture and your shutter speed accordingly. Watch your subjects from a distance with your camera concealed. Be patient but alert for an interesting situation to develop. When you see the picture you want to take, locate the spot from which you are going to take it. Then, unless yours is a fixed focus camera, measure with your eye the distance from that spot to Grandpa and the youngster, set the pointer at the right mark, and, keeping the camera behind you until you get there, stroll up and shoot. If they look up at you before you get there, be nonchalant and wait for them to resume their activity, or make some casual suggestion that will put them "off guard." You see, in order to be a good "off-guard" snapshooter, you have to be "crazy," and this exercising of strategy to prevent people from posing is part of the fun.

Of course, you must know the capabilities of your camera. A camera with ultra-fast lens and shutter, plus supersensitive panchromatic film, greatly increases your range of opportunity especially for fast action, but the ordinary camera, too, will make "off-guard" snapshots if the movement of the subject is not too rapid.

Collapsible tubes, in which come such household commodities as toothpaste, commence in the form of a button of tin no larger or thicker than two Canadian five cent pieces, says a "The C-I-L Oval." Wooden heels are extruded under pressure of from 150 to 600 tons up the sides of a steel rod, thus forming the body of the tube. The tubes are then lacquered, printed and polished.

Canada possesses two minerals in greater abundance than any other country in the world—nickel and asbestos. Both were considered freaks until a commercial use was found for them, says J. C. Lowery, writing in the current issue of "The C-I-L Oval." Of the world's demand for nickel Canada supplies 90 per cent, while of the total world production of asbestos, Canada produces some 79 per cent. Asbestos was first discovered by the Romans in the Italian Alps, but the only use they could find for it was to make wicks for lamps and shrouds for their dead. Today the automobile industry uses about 55 per cent of the annual production to make brake linings.

Canada's two railway systems operate between them 5,000 powerful steam locomotives, 7,500 passenger cars and over 200,000 freight cars. They have a combined trackage of over 42,000 miles and employ more than 120,000 men and women, according to a story entitled, "Modern Highways of Steel," which appears in the current issue of "The C-I-L Oval." The annual payroll of the two railways is in excess of $150,000,000.

Fifty per cent of the heels of women's shoes are made of wood, says Jean C. Anglin, writing on the subject of "Heels," in the June issue of "The C-I-L Oval." Wooden heels are considerably lighter than leather and are subjected to three different treatments. Some are sprayed with lacquer, some are covered with leather, but the majority are covered with thin sheets of a plastic material which, under pressure, is made to stimulate a variety of leather grains. This protective coating prevents heels from becoming scuffed or nicked.

PREMIER ABERHART

AND THE PRESS

The newspaper men of the Province, particularly the weekly press, have all they own or ever hope to own here in Alberta and are justified in using their newspapers to protect their interests and those of the Province they call home.

Should the Social Credit Government succeed in putting over their theories to the benefit of the people of the province every newspaper will rejoice with the people and give all credit to Hon. Mr. Aberhart and his followers.

If Hon. Mr. Aberhart is convinced and sincere in his claim that Social Credit is the solution of all our ills, he should pay no heed to criticism but simply carry on, secure in the knowledge that he will finally succeed and receive the just reward of his efforts and the sincere thanks and praise, not only of his present supporters, but also of all people and of those newspapers who are at present offering the criticism to which he so strongly objects.

Newspapers throughout Alberta will be among the first to offer our Premier their hearty congratulations and support if and when that happy day should arrive—Innisfail Province.

FIRST... THE TRUTH

THE same man is a hero to his friend and a ranter to his enemy. Opinions differ. Opinions will always differ. But an intelligent opinion is possible only when all the facts are known. The truth—the facts—the news—these are the essentials. You must have them to think clearly, to decide intelligently on any question. And you need not be without them. News of every event of importance, every issue; every angle, is brought to you by the press—not just one version, but the whole truth as it can be drawn from every available source.

A GOOD newspaper's own expressions of opinion are confined to its editorial space. The integrity of its news columns is inviolate. They present the discoverable facts, uncolored by politics or allegiance to any group or faction. Your inalienable right to form your own opinion is unprejudiced.

A FREE and untrammelled press—a liberty that is denied in many other countries—that is what the independent daily and weekly newspapers of Alberta offer you. They give a voice to current opinion that is heard in high places. They are a perpetual safeguard to the freedom and welfare of the people.

YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF TO SUPPORT THE NEWSPAPERS THAT SPEAK IN YOUR INTERESTS.

WRITING UP A WEDDING

Most newspaper men flee with loud screams when assigned to write up a wedding. But we've heard of one editor who covered one—and did a swell job, too. Here it is:

"It was a wonderful wedding. The girl was as sweet as any girl who ever lived, but modern. As she walked up the aisle on her father's arm, her lips lightly tilted at the corners with a happy smile, she was a picture of modest beauty. Her filmy wedding gown and gossamer veil floated around her blonde head like a halo. She was as nearly an angel as girls get to be in this world. At the altar she passed from her father, the man she had always loved, to the other man to whom she would devote the rest of her life, her dainty slipper touched a potted lily resting on the floor and turned it over. Smiling again, she turned to the dear old pastor, waiting at the chancel, and said,

"That was a hell of a place to put a lily."

The second known lucky editor to be known since Alberta became a province is Ben Huckell. He held a ticket recently that won him a prize, a radio bench. The other guy lived up near Edmonton and Dame Fortune left him a ten-thousand-dollar spot a few years ago. Well, sir, if we could win ten bucks tomorrow, we'd buy a complete mimeograph outfit and hand it over to some Scotch merchant for his own use free of charge.

Developing Hudson's Bay Route

Recent announcements of efforts that are being made to interest British capital and Federal provincial governments to aid in extending the sphere of influence and service of Churchill as the Canadian port of the Hudson's Bay route by construction of rail extensions to give direct connection between the Bay and the larger centres in the western provinces as well as the Pacific Coast are stimulating public interest in the possibilities of further development of this comparatively new trade channel.

The past few months has seen the birth of proposals that Winnipeg should be given direct connection with Churchill by construction of a road due north from that city which would cut off approximately one-third of the distance between the Bay and Winnipeg via the Pas; that a line should be built from Big River, Saskatchewan through the Lake Athabasca country, giving Prince Albert direct connection with Hudson's Bay and bringing Saskatoon closer; that a link should be made between that line and the Alberta Great Waterways Railway giving Edmonton and Calgary connection with Churchill and also, via Edmonton, a line from Churchill to Vancouver, using the existing C.N.R. main line from the Alberta capital to the B.C. coast port and finally, a suggestion of a more direct line between the Pacific Coast and Churchill through the Peace River country.

It is not likely that all these lines will be built at once, but so many advantages can be claimed for them that it is reasonable to believe extensions will be made from time to time, as the need for them becomes more apparent, and that in course of time, perhaps not so far distant, a more or less direct northern route from Churchill to the Pacific Coast will be an actuality. Just how long that will be a matter of pure conjecture at this stage.

Some of the advantages claimed for these extensions are that they would make possible the development of the rich mineral lands in the north of the three prairie provinces with greater rapidity, that the shortened distances between Hudson's Bay and the larger western centres would result in decreased freight levies on many incoming and outgoing commodities and that a shorter overland route would tend to promote more tourist traffic between Europe and the Orient. It is also contended that the construction of a direct north route between the Pacific and the Bay would have distinct militaristic value in the event of Canada becoming embroiled with any aggressive Oriental power, since Vancouver would no longer be the sole practical outlet on the western seaboard.

While the military aspect has not been overlooked, the promoters of this new northern network of communications are more particularly interested in the value it would have in developing the trade and commerce of the country, its potential effect on the free exchange of commodities between Western Canada and European countries and particularly Great Britain and its possibility in promoting more local trade.

With the prospective development of the mineralized areas of this vast north country becoming more immediate the last-mentioned objective is one which has immediate significance to the people of the western provinces and should be of particular interest to the farmers who, under existing conditions, are finding an urgent need of developing more and greater local markets for increasing varieties of farm products.

When the immensity of this great northland is reviewed and the undoubted great value of its resources is considered, the possibility of developing local markets for prairie farm products almost stretches the imagination. Because of the vastness of the country almost everything required for sustenance of its workers will have to be shipped in and the natural and economically practical source of supply for such commodities is the contiguous agricultural belt.

Then, too, direct railways into the northland will lure tourists from the United States into a country which to them, as well as to the majority of Canadians, is a land of mystery with unparalleled attractions for the lover of the great outdoors and the sportsman. They too will have to be fed on what the country affords, and this, it must be remembered is a strictly cash business. Moreover, tourists who can take excursions into such distant territory will not cavil at the few cents additional price they would have to pay, provided they can get the service they demand.

Although its first objective, the construction of a line to Hudson's Bay and of a port and terminal facilities at the northern seaboard has been achieved, the On-to-the-Bay Association does not consider its work completed and it is pleasing to note that the organization is continuing its efforts to make the venture a success in efforts to secure lower freight and marine insurance rates and to foster business via the comparatively new route.

When it is remembered that the Association only came into existence in 1923 its efforts have borne fruit of surprising magnitude in a very short space of time.

Professor Believes Electricity Could Be Produced From Antarctic Gales
Electricity made by Antarctic gales may soon be used to illuminate every home in the world, in the opinion of Prof. Frank Debenham, who was with Captain Scott on his ill-fated expedition and is now director of the Scott Polar Research Institute at Cambridge, England.

Prof. Debenham is confident that the present uninhabited south polar region, nearly 5,000,000 square miles in extent, will one day house the great power-generating stations of the world.

"All round the continent," he said, "terrible winds blow from the high plateau, and one day these may be harnessed to wind-driven generators. But we should have to wait until we have radio-transmission of power before this inexhaustible source of energy could be connected with the rest of the world."

No human or animal life exists in the Antarctic because, even if they could survive the rigors of the climate, there is no plant life.

To counteract this, however, the professor said building of subterranean cities far below the ice-bound desolation and deadly blizzards of the Antarctic would not be fantastic.

Scientists now visualize the building of great subterranean caverns wherein cities can be erected, with complete scientific civilization, artificial sunlight, and air-conditioning which would put the climate under the control of man.

New Source Of Heat

Blanket Of Ozone Above Earth Has Effect On Weather

A new source of hot weather which, strangely enough, seems to lie in the icy cold stratosphere was reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science at Rochester, N.Y.

The heat source is a "blanket" of ozone which appears to reflect back to earth the heat which the earth's surface radiates upward. Ozone is a rare form of oxygen. How it acts as a one-way blanket which lets the sun's heat in but stops the earth's heat from escaping was described by Brian O'Brien of the University of Rochester.

His heat theory, which is new, is one result of the stratosphere flights made by the National Geographic Society and the United States army air corps. He proposed it to the American Meteorological Society at the opening session of a three-day meeting of the science association.

The stratosphere flights carried instruments which showed quite definitely that above North America a blanket of ozone lies with its centre 15 to 20 miles above the earth. The existence of this blanket has been recognized by scientists for about 10 years. Evidence it has an effect upon the weather is new.

The ozone blanket, Prof. O'Brien explained, grows thicker or thinner as the sun's rays increase or diminish. It is a protection during the frequent periods when the sun gives off increased radiation.

Discover New Drug

Announcement Made By U.S. Department Of Agriculture

Outstanding success during the past year in use of a new drug for the treatment of burns, chronic ulcers and other non-healing wounds was announced from the United States department of agriculture.

Dr. William Robinson, scientist who brought the chemical known as allantoin into wide use after discovering its curative properties, said remarkable results have been obtained by physicians and surgeons throughout the country.

Speaking cautiously lest the drug might be regarded in the class of alleged cure-alls, Dr. Robinson said results thus far have led the members of the medical profession who have used it to extend the application of allantoin to the treatment of other external wounds which have failed to heal under other treatment. These have included infections of the mouth, diabetic ulcers, and the bone disease known as osteomyelitis.

Inscriptions To Be Engraved On Canadian Memorial At Vimy
Four inscriptions will be engraved on the Canadian war memorial at Vimy. Two will be in both English and French, one in French and one in Latin.

The main inscription on the westerly faces of the pylons will read: "To the valour of their countrymen in the Great War and in memory of their sixty thousand dead, this monument is raised by the people of Canada."

"A la vaillance des ses fils pendant la Grande Guerre, et en memoire de ses soixante mille morts, le peuple Canadien a eleve ce monument."

On the inner face of the second front wall will appear:

"The Canadian corps, on April 9, 1917, with four divisions in line on a front of four miles, attacked and captured this ridge."

"L'armee Canadienne attaquant avec quatre divisions sur un front de six kilometres emporta cette crete d'assaut le 9 Avril, 1917."

As a tribute to French and British troops who suffered so heavily on the ground these words will be engraved on the front face of one pylon near the figure of sacrifice: "Freres d'armes Français et Britanniques la Canada se Souvient!"

On the tomb in front of the memorial a Latin inscription will appear: "In memoriam septuaginta millium Canadensium qui Anno Domini MCXCVI-MCXXVIII, in armis ultra mare vitam pro patria ultro dederunt."

Rendered into English this is: "In memory of 60,000 Canadians who in the years 1914-1918 serving in arms overseas of their own free will gave up their lives for their country."

Conducting Forest Survey

Saskatchewan Plans To Protect Timber Against Excessive Cutting

A survey of cut over forests in Saskatchewan will be conducted this summer by the Dominion forestry service, in co-operation with the provincial department of natural resources.

The province is anxious to get full information in order to determine the rate of growth of timber as a means of protecting the forests against excessive cutting.

Kerr, minister of natural resources, wrote to the federal government urging that this work be done in the province this year. In pressing for the service, he spoke of the necessity of getting the province's lumbering operation on a sustained yield basis—that is to limit the cutting operations to the natural growth each year, thus preserving for all time the forest resources of the province.

In reply to this request, the federal government has agreed to conduct the survey, and the work will be undertaken this summer.

Great Road-Building Project

Tunnel Under Bering Straits Would Link Alaska And Siberia

Back in prehistoric times, it is believed, the Eastern and Western hemispheres were so closely linked that primitive man found it easy to direct his migratory movements from one to the other. If there was not complete union, there was at least a physical condition approximating it.

Now there is talk of restoring that condition by means of a highway that shall reach across the Arctic wastes of the Far North, to Yukon, Alaska, and thence to Siberia by means of a tunnel under Bering Straits. This plan is properly referred to as "the greatest road building project of modern times."

How much of this is an engineering dream and how much of it is based on the hope of profitable returns is not quite clear, although the statement is made that it is being given consideration by financial interests in both the East and the West. The vast mineral and oil wealth of the northland are some of the inducements that make the scheme attractive, it is said. Recent discoveries have revealed that there is a wealth of pitchblende, gold, silver, copper and other mineral deposits in the sub-Arctic regions. The estimated cost is placed at half a billion.

Certainly a project of this nature appeals strongly to the imagination because of adventure, profit and pleasure. It points to the future possibility of motor tours that will truly encompass the world.—Buffalo Courier-Express.

The standard net weight of a can of fruit, vegetables or any foodstuffs should be stamped plainly on the outside of the container, the National Council of Women decided. "Middle sizes" were misleading, the delegates claimed and grocers would like a standardizing of the "in-between" can themselves. The resolution was moved on behalf of the Vancouver local council.

Continued Search For By-Products Benefits Farm And Factory

Presence of undesirable mineral elements in straw has thwarted efforts of science to use it in paper-making and although the handicap may be overcome shortly by scientists, vastness of Canada's wood-pulp reserve will prevent widespread use of straw for paper-making. Dr. Harold Hibbert of McGill University stated in an interview at Edmonton.

Professor of industrial and cellulose chemistry for the pulp and paper research branch at McGill, Dr. Hibbert is leading the scientific movement to find new industrial uses for Canadian farm products. He is an authority on "chemistry," a coalition of chemical and agricultural sciences.

Our greatest test to date has been throwing of important new light on composition of plants," Dr. Hibbert explained in speaking of chemurgists. "We are continually searching for new by-products from farm products and when we find one our discovery is of mutual benefit to farmer and manufacturer."

CANADA BACKS BRITISH PLAN TO LIFT SANCTIONS

Ottawa.—Canada lined up with the United Kingdom in supporting the movement to lift economic sanctions against Italy. Premier Mackenzie King announced in the House of Commons Canadian delegates to the approaching meeting of the league would be instructed to press for sanction lifting.

The prime minister made his statement a few hours after Anthony Eden, Britain's foreign minister, told the United Kingdom parliament the British government would lead the movement to lift sanctions. He made it plain, however, the Canadian government came to its decision, independent of the British viewpoint, several days ago.

At the same time, Mr. King said, Canada would continue to support the League of Nations in its efforts to promote collective security and peace. It would be folly to disorganize it.

Canada would not work alone through the league to promote good will and understanding, Mr. King said. When circumstances permitted, legislation would be extended to foreign and empire countries.

It would be dangerous and futile to continue sanctions against Italy now that Ethiopia has been conquered and Haile Selassie put to flight. When circumstances permitted, the government's view there was no alternative to raising the economic bars against trade with Italy.

Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, said he could not entirely agree with the government's attitude although he admitted his mind was not made up entirely.

There was a different viewpoint to sanctions which had been expressed by Premier Hertzog of South Africa. Mr. Bennett said, and so far as he could find no lack of logic in it. It was that by lifting sanctions, it would be a direct premium on the violation of international agreements. There is no escape from that.

Abolition of sanctions, continued Mr. Bennett, meant that Italy, after subduing Ethiopia, would be able to poison gas and weight of arms, was to escape punishment for breaking her word to the world.

It might be wise for Canada, a new country, a young democracy, to tell the world it did not sanction the breaking of solemn treaties. "Why," asked Mr. Bennett, referring to relaxation of sanctions, "should we take that action simply because someone else does?" It might be wise for Canada to stand as an example of rectitude to the rest of the world.

Lower Interest Rates

Premier Bracken Says Government Pledged To Use Efforts To This End

Winnipeg.—Premier John Bracken's Manitoba government is pledged to every "reasonable effort" in bringing about lower interest rates on borrowings by the province, municipalities and individuals.

In his first public utterance since announcement that provincial elections will be held July 27, Mr. Bracken declared lower interest rates would be sought but he emphasized no threat of either debt repudiation or arbitrary action was implied.

In an address to the Manitoba Municipal Secretaries-Treasurers' Association, the premier gave some indication of policies the Liberal-Progressive party would present to the voters next month.

He outlined a six-fold unemployment relief policy, called upon the Dominion to assume a larger share of the cost of social services and referred to problems of agricultural, municipal and drought relief.

Tax Collections Higher

Ottawa.—An increase of nearly $9,000,000 was shown in May income tax collections compared with May, 1935, according to a statement issued by the Department of National Revenue. Total collections amounted to $59,687,726 against $50,804,860 in May last year.

Two Minutes Of Silence

Ottawa.—Members of the government said they would consider the request of the Canadian Corps Association Council to have two minutes of silence decreed throughout the Dominion, July 26, at the moment King Edward VIII. unveiled the Canadian memorial at Vimy Ridge.

Supplementary Estimates

Largest Single Amounts Are For Public Works

Ottawa.—Hon. Charles Dunning, finance minister, tabled supplementary estimates for the year ending March 31, 1937, totalling $11,265,959, of which the largest single amounts were for public works, and loans and advances to the national harbours boards and harbor commissions.

There was a substantial addition to the appropriations for national defence and aviation. A total of $2,835,700 additional is to be spent on public works, mainly for buildings in which all the provinces share except British Columbia.

One of the largest items in the public building appropriations is $250,000 for a supreme court building in Ottawa, a long-mooted project.

Militia services get an additional $1,052,426, and the air force, coupled with civil government air operations and civil aviation, $1,088,115.

Agriculture will get an additional $78,000 of which the largest item is $750,000 for administration of the health of animals branch, administration of Contagious Diseases Act, and Canned Foods Act. For marketing of agricultural products an additional $300,000 will be appropriated.

For losses sustained by the British foreign immigration agreement of 1934, the estimates provide for $74,866.

An echo of the 1935 riots in Regina arising from the activities of relief camp strikers, appeared in the estimates in the form of an appropriation of $2,576 for legal fees arising from the inquiry commission which recently completed its work in the Saskatchewan capital.

Hopper Infestation

Mid-Western United States Threatened With Worst Plague Since 1931

Des Moines, Ia.—The worst grasshopper infestation since the "plague" of 1931 and 1932 threatens mid-western United States crops, an agricultural survey disclosed.

With newly-hatched "hoppers" already swarming over grain fields in sections of Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Montana, reports of infestation were reported also in parts of Illinois, Wisconsin and Colorado.

Recalling the devastation to corn and small grain by the insect hordes four years ago, H. C. Aaberg, assistant Iowa secretary of agriculture, asked that state's congressmen to join other mid-western legislators in demanding a $2,500,000 federal appropriation.

Aaberg proposed the funds be used over a two-year period to provide farmers with poison bait, which it is spread over the fields to kill the pests.

In other infested areas the threat was equally serious. O. S. Bare, University of Nebraska entomologist, predicted Nebraska was in for a disastrous season unless control measures were quickly adopted. He added that "hoppers were reported by the millions" over the state.

Big Oil Gusher

Deepest Producing Well In British Empire In Turner Valley

Calgary.—With a roar that could be heard for several miles, a new oil well, the Turner Valley Royalties, declared to be the deepest producing well in the British Empire, came into production recently.

Following the crash of a column of mud and water from the depths more than a mile below the surface, crude oil flowed out in heavy volume. The well is 6,824 feet deep. Clarence E. Snyder, veteran driller, estimated the flow ran from 700 to 1,500 barrels daily. A flow-controlling device was installed immediately.

To Await New Session

Ottawa.—Amendments to the British North America Act to provide a method by which Canada may amend its own constitution will have to await another session of parliament, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, told the House of Commons in answer to a question from J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader.

Ask Federal Aid

Ottawa.—Canada's parliament of health, the second annual conference of provincial ministers of health with the Dominion health department, concluded with passage of resolutions asking a great degree of federal assistance in dealing with problems like cancer and tuberculosis.

Royal Air Force

Plan To Place Organization On A War Basis

London.—Reorganization of the home commands of the Royal Air Force, so as to make the peace organization conform as closely as possible with the organization visualized for war, was announced by the air council.

The new plan, which is consequent upon the expansion of the air force, will comprise three operational commands, namely bomber, fighter and coastal commands, and one training command. The air defence of Great Britain command will disappear and coastal defence will be reorganized.

The air defence of the country will be vested in the three operational commands. Close co-ordination will be exercised between the commands and the air ministry both in peace and war.

ITALY DEMANDS RECOGNITION OF ANNEXATION

Rome.—Italy is not satisfied with mere lifting of sanctions. It also demands recognition of its annexation of Ethiopia.

This, in brief, was the government's stand as outlined to Havas by informed political quarters, who commented on the British cabinet's decision to take the lead in removal of penalties.

London.—The cabinet decided sanctions against Italy must be lifted and approved a pronouncement of new policy dealing, it was reported, both with League of Nations reform and with Germany.

Members, convinced continuance of the present measures against Italy would serve no useful purpose, gave authority to the statement which Foreign Secretary Eden will make in the House of Commons.

That statement, was expected to follow these lines: Sanctions: Britain is ready to lift them if other members of the league are willing.

The league must be supported but reformed. European peace: A way to settlement must be opened and Germany holds the key to it.

Will Attend Youth Congress

Thirty Young Canadians Leave In August For Geneva

Ottawa.—Thirty young Canadians are expected to leave on a modern youth crusade to Geneva this mid-August to attend the World Youth Congress opening August 31, according to an announcement from the national office of the League of Nations Society in Canada.

These delegates will represent various groups of young people throughout the Dominion and will be selected by the League of Nations Society from among nominations sent in by interested organizations.

BRITAIN'S NEW COLONIAL SECRETARY TAKES OFFICE

QUEBEC PREMIER

When Premier Taschereau of Quebec resigned after announcing that a new Provincial election would take place in August, the Hon. Joseph Adolphe Godbout (above) was named Prime Minister of the Province. Mr. Godbout was Minister of Agriculture in the Taschereau Administration.

Railway Bill Approved

Gives C.N.R. Permission To Build Line In North Quebec

Ottawa.—The house railway committee approved the legislation which gives the Canadian National permission to build a line from Rouyn to Senneville in northern Quebec, a distance of 99 miles at an estimated cost of $5,940,000. This will tap a rich mining area east of Nanaimo.

The measure was not adopted by the committee without strenuous opposition in which N. E. Lariviere, former member of the Quebec legislature for Temiscaming, was permitted to take part. Mr. Lariviere had sponsored in the provincial house the bill which would allow the Canadian Pacific Railway to build a line from Angliers, Que. to Rouyn, and extend it easterly through the mining belt.

However, following an hour and half's discussion, the committee settled all the pros and cons by adopting the bill in toto.

Fragment Of Plane

To Be Presented To Germany By Canada's Olympic Team

Toronto.—A fragment of the plane in which Baron Manfred von Richthofen, German flying ace, was brought down in France by a Canadian, Roy Brown, will be presented to Germany this summer by Canada's Olympic team. Captain W. R. "Wop" May, Edmonton flyer, whose life was saved when Brown killed the German ace, is donating the fragment. Richthofen was chasing May's crippled ship when Brown came to May's assistance.

Freighter Changes Hands

Quebec.—The 5,400-ton freighter, Canadian Conqueror, passed out of the hands of the Canadian government merchant marine as she was officially taken over by her new owners, the Montreal, Australia, New Zealand line.

Many Took Up Insurance

Lloyd's Offered Odds Against Change In Coronation Plans

London.—Lloyd's Insurance Corporation offered odds of 10 to 1 against any change in plans for the coronation of the King next year. Brokers from the corporation offered these odds to souvenir manufacturers against the chance the King will marry prior to the coronation ceremony or the event will be postponed.

They did a land-office business insuring pottery and other knick-knack makers who are beginning to turn out thousands of coronation souvenirs.

If His Majesty married, for example, the mugs, plaques and other trinkets specially made for the coronation would require two portraits instead of one.

JUDGMENT OF SUPREME COURT ON REFORM LAWS

Ottawa.—The supreme court of Canada found constitutional two of the eight "reform" statutes referred to it, declared one partly valid, two ultra vires and returned the verdicts on three.

The judgments in brief were: Natural Products Marketing Act—Invalid.

Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act—Valid.

Section 498A of the criminal code—Valid.

Dominion Trade and Industry Commission Act—Partly valid.

Employment and Social Insurance Act—Invalid.

Week Day of Rest in Industrial Undertakings Act—Tie verdict.

Minimum Wages Act—Tie verdict.

Limitation of Hours of Work Act—Tie verdict.

The Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act is a device to scale down farm debts.

Section 498A of the criminal code imposed fines and imprisonment for unethical business practices as recommended by the price spreads commission.

The Employment and Social Insurance Act would have allowed men and women to contribute a portion of their wages and receive weekly doles when they lost their jobs.

The Natural Products Marketing Act enabled groups of producers to set prices and regulate marketing of their products.

Dominion Trade and Industries Commission Act: A statute organizing a commission which would have supervision over business and insist on fair trade practices.

Minimum Wage Act, forty-eight hour week and one day's rest in seven; three acts bunched in one reference to improve labor conditions and were passed under authority of conventions of the international labor office at Geneva.

The judges split 3-3 on three of the statutes—minimum wages, 48-hour week and a weekly day of rest. Upholding the laws with the exception of one section of the Minimum Wage Act were Chief Justice Duff and Judges Davis and Kerwin. Finding them unconstitutional were Judges Rinfret, Canon and Crockett.

The judgments of the court will be appealed to the privy council in England, either by the provinces or the Dominion, depending upon the verdict in each case.

"The judgment of the court is not binding and does not wipe the unconstitutional laws off the statute books. It is merely an opinion of the court."

The hearing before the court lasted two weeks with the judges taking five months to study the 500,000 words of evidence and the hundreds of legal precedents cited in argument. The hearing was completed just before the opening of parliament.

The provinces claimed the eight laws should be wiped off the statute books because parliament exceeded its powers in passing them. The Dominion upheld them, insisting they were constitutional and within the legal rights of parliament.

The 3-3 split on the three "treaty laws", minimum wages, 48-hour week and weekly day of rest, really will have no effect because it is not binding. It will be appealed to the privy council, probably by joint action of the Dominion and provinces, and its judgment will be final although not binding on any lower court.

Pending the privy council appeal, it is unlikely parliament will do anything to amend the unconstitutional laws, certainly not at this session.

COMMISSION TO PROBE ABUSES IN QUEBEC AFFAIRS

Quebec.—A royal commission will conduct a complete inquiry into the "previous" administration of Quebec province. Premier Adolphe Godbout said in his first address as prime minister.

The commission will be "absolutely independent of the government," he declared, and people whom the inquiry revealed as being responsible for any abuses would be punished regardless of their position and station.

Such recommendation as might be made by the commission following the inquiry would be followed to the letter by the new government, the premier said, adding the new government would be "in a few days."

The only instructions the commission would receive would be to bring to light all that has been done by the Quebec administration, regardless of whether the revelations affect or involve persons attached to the Liberal party.

The premier promised his government would implement reforms which would assure farmers "an honest return for their toil," assure the working man a "reasonable salary" and "restore the economic equilibrium of the province."

The new government felt rich and poor alike were entitled to take advantage of the rights of property. "Industry which in this crisis needs the help and the protection of the state will have from us that help and protection," declared Premier Godbout.

Speaking in French, the premier promised his government would take steps necessary to put an end to the working and establish a plan under which work would be exchanged for reasonable wages.

The coming election campaign will be a three-party fight.

Paul Gouin, leader of the insurgent group, L'Action Libérale Nationale, announced his party would enter the campaign free from the agreement it made with the Conservative party in the election of last November when they united for the express purpose of defeating the Liberal regime of Louis-Joseph Taschereau, in power for the last 16 years.

Rupture of the agreement between the two parties had been brought about by "a series of acts" since last election day. Nov. 25, said the 38-year-old rebel Liberal, "L'Action Libérale Nationale," he said, "faithful to its principles, therefore today pits itself against the two old Tory and 'trustard' parties, that of the Hon. Mr. Godbout and Mr. Duplessis."
